

New motivational book from local author

Local award-winning writer Roscoe Barnes III has written a book to show readers how to find their purpose in life and become a star in their own field.

The new book, "Discover Your Talent and Find Fulfillment: A Guide to Using Your Skills to Get What You Need and Want Out of Life," is published by McKinley & Henson

"This book is a Talent Primer," said Barnes. "It's designed to ignite in you a passion to discover and efficiently use your natural gifts and find realistic ways to enjoy your dreams!"

Barnes also said that among other things, readers will learn what talent they already possess; how to choose a career that's right for them; how to use their talent to make extra money; how to develop their talent for lasting success; and how to deal with discouragement.

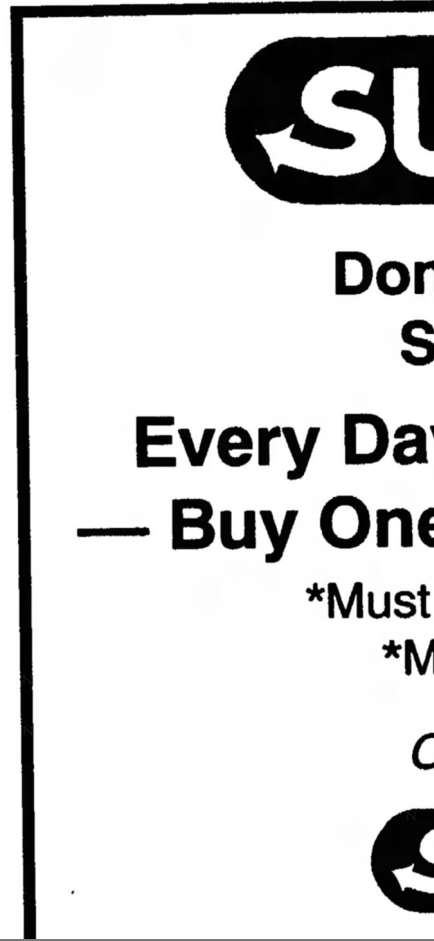

The new book is receiving high praise from Ted W. Engstrom, president, Emeritus of World Vision, and New York Times bestselling author Peter McWilliams.

Besides from being an author, Roscoe Barnes III is also an accomplished artist, popular speaker, minister, and veteran of the U.S. military. He holds a M.A. degree from Gettysburg Lutheran Seminary.

"Discover Your Talent and Find Fulfillment" is a trade paperback, retailing at $6.95. It is already available at Gallery 30, 30 York St.,

Gettysburg.
